Creating a Healthier Future: Population Health Approaches to Planning

This Victorian Healthcare Association (VHA) Conference will provide a variety of perspectives on population health approaches to planning from leaders across government, politics, academia and industry.

Population health approaches to planning are integrated and collaborative approaches that demand that health and non-health sectors, government departments, and service delivery agencies work together to address the health issues faced by their communities.

The VHA welcomes health service CEOs, executives, board members and health promotion coordinators as well as those representing Primary Care Partnerships, Divisions of General Practice, not-for-profit organisations and all levels of government concerned with health and social planning.

The conference program has been informed by the VHA/Monash University research project "Population health approaches to planning for the Victorian healthcare system".
